

MKM PRECISION STEEL CHALLENGE

Steel Challenge Match Procedures:

Shooter Expectations:

- Shooters should be ready when it is their turn to shoot. This means that you are ready prior to the shooter ahead of you. If you start prepping for the stage when it is your turn you may get a 1:1 chat with the MD.
- Shooters shall exit the stage in a quick manner after they have completed the stage.
- Shooters will need to help spot impacts for others and assist in keeping score for others.
- Shooters shall conduct themselves in a positive and professional manner. If you have any issues with the score on your stage, please call the match director.

Positions: shooters choose any one of the three to shoot from on each stage.

- Prone (Shooters must bring their own mat, one will not be provided)
- Modified Prone from the bench
- Seated on the LEFT or RIGHT side of the bench.
- NO Movement is required once the timer starts.

Stage Starting Positions:

1. Shooters must start with all gear in hand, magazine in, and bolt back. On the beep the shooter will move into position and engage targets in the designated manner.

 NO prep time will be allowed on the bench or in the prone position for shooters *****

Upon Completion of the Stage:

1. Once you have competed your stage, please collect your brass and remove your rifle from the stage in a quick but safe manner.
2. Any discussions about your time on the stage MUST be discussed once you have cleared the stage.
3. Once you have completed your stage and have prepped for the next stage please aide in spotting for your fellow squad mates.

Coaching a shooter:

- This match is intended to be an introduction to competitive long range shooting for new shooters.
- With this in mind, it is encouraged to help coach the new shooters or any shooter that may be struggling.
- We encourage the coaching new and struggling shooters on the clock. For those experienced shooters that are competing this is an excellent opportunity to hone your skills and you should not accept any coaching.
- The expectation of these matches is to have fun, learn, and become a member of your local precision rifle community. For those experienced shooters that are competing this is an excellent opportunity to hone your skills.
